Hurricane

The tall, waisted Hurricane glass will spark your creativity and lend excitement to your long, ice-cold drinks. Its voluptuous, curved shape showcases colourful, layered cocktails and trendy, colourful ice cream. The same goes for the pots-pourris of dried flowers and multicoloured petals used for table decoration that changes with the seasons.

This glass is also available in tough SAN plastic for poolsides or spas (see page 63).

Tall cocktail

Customers first drink their cocktails with their eyes... The Kyoto glass adds to the tasting pleasure with its sleek Japanese form. It is designed to present layered cocktails, topped with fruit or sweet skewers. The more creativity involved, the more this glass comes into its own.

These imposing glasses from the Martigues collection inspired by pastis glasses can be used in many different ways. They bring out the colours of drinks and cocktails, in their flared, generous shape.

Parrot

The Tiki-inspired mugs are an excellent way to serve island cocktails like Pina Coladas and Mai Tais. You are guaranteed to have the perfect container for any occasion or theme, whether in an island bar, poolside or in a beach bar.

Skull

Skulls have long been part of popular culture. We see them used in various ways in fashion and interior design. This type of product is already available on the market, but ours is by far the best because of its large size: 90 cl!

—HERITAGE EDITION—

Mixology Club is all about bringing innovation, ideas, inspiration and individuality to your drinks. Hand selected concepts from the worlds leading glassware brands, designed to give you an unbeatable professional upper hand, bespoke artistic flair and pure technical accuracy when serving drinks. It's what's in your glass.

The Stinger originated around 1890. The cocktail may have been derived from The Judge, a cocktail made with brandy, crème de menthe. It was immediately popular in New York, and quickly became known as a “society” drink (i.e. only for the upper-classes).

French 75

The French 75 was created in 1915 in Harry's New York Bar in Paris. The drink's creator Harry MacElhone bought the bar from former American star jockey Ted Sloan, who had originally dismantled it in Manhattan and had it shipped over to Paris. Combining gin, lemon, sugar & Champagne, this cocktail derives its name from being said to have a kick like being shelled by a French-75mm field gun.

Dry Martini

The legendary Dry Martini is one of the most popular cocktails in existence, unsurprisingly for a drink so popular and well founded its exact origins are unclear, but it is first mentioned as far back as the 1860s. There are many different takes on the Martini, the real common ground being that they are all served in the 'Martini Glass'.

Mai Tai

The name Mai Tai is allegedly derived from the Tahitian word for “good” or “excellence”, maita’i. The cocktail contains rum, curaçao liqueur, orgeat syrup, and lime juice. The Mai Tai became a popular cocktail in the 1950s-60s when it was served during the initial boom of Tiki-themed bars and restaurants, and the cocktail also featured in the Elvis Presley film ‘Blue Hawaii’.
